

Call for Papers: Cooperation within BRICS

Contemporary World Economy, the journal of the HSE University's School of World Economy, is pleased to announce a series of special issues focusing on economic cooperation within the BRICS group of countries.

This year saw the expansion of BRICS, with five new members joining the organization. What will intra-BRICS cooperation in trade, finance, digitalization, sustainable development, climate change, and science and technology look like? What kind of challenges await BRICS in its expanded form? What are the potential areas in which new members of the organization will be most involved? In our special issues, we would like to answer these and other compelling questions.

Researchers and scholars are invited to submit their original articles. We are happy to consider research articles on various aspects of cooperation within BRICS and include the views of experts from different countries, from the BRICS group and beyond.

Deadline for submission of papers: 15 September 2024
